Family physicians receive honorary degree from the American Academy of Family Physicians

AUSTIN, TEXAS — Six Texas family physicians have achieved the Degree of Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), the national medical association representing nearly 100,000 family physicians, residents, and medical students. They were recognized at a ceremony held on July 13, 2012, during the Texas Academy of Family Physicians 63rd Annual Session and Scientific Assembly in Austin.

- Camille M. Leugers, M.D., FAAFP, of Bellaire, Texas
- Susan E. McNeil, M.D., FAAFP, of Fort Worth, Texas
- Mark Douglas Miller, M.D., FAAFP, of Kilgore, Texas
- Hillary Gwen Miller, M.D., FAAFP, of Austin, Texas
- Allison Becker Ochsner, M.D., Ph.D., FAAFP, of Houston, Texas
- Sarah Samreen, M.D., FAAFP, of Helotes, Texas

Established in 1971, the AAFP Degree of Fellow recognizes family physicians who have distinguished themselves through service to family medicine and ongoing professional development. This year's fellowship class brings the total number of AAFP Fellows to more than 29,000 nationwide. AAFP Fellowship entitles the physician to use the honorary designation, "Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians," or "FAAFP."

Criteria for receiving the AAFP Degree of Fellow consist of a minimum of six years of membership in the organization, extensive continuing medical education, participation in public service programs outside medical practice, conducting original research, and serving as a teacher in family medicine.

AAFP was the first national medical specialty organization to require its members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical education every three years. It is the only medical specialty society devoted solely to primary care.

About the Texas Academy of Family Physicians

The Texas Academy of Family Physicians is the premier membership organization dedicated to uniting the family doctors of Texas through advocacy, education and member services, and empowering them to provide a medical home for patients of all ages. It has 33 local chapters and is a chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians. Visit www.tafp.org for more information.

About the American Academy of Family Physicians

Founded in 1947, the AAFP represents nearly 100,000 physicians and medical students nationwide. It is the only medical society devoted solely to primary care.

Nearly one in four of all office visits are made to family physicians. That is 208 million office visits each year – nearly 83 million more than the next medical specialty. Today, family physicians provide the majority of care for America’s underserved and rural populations.

In the increasingly fragmented world of health care where many medical specialties limit their practice to a particular organ, disease, age, or sex, family physicians are dedicated to treating the whole person across the full spectrum of ages. Family medicine’s cornerstone is an ongoing, personal patient-physician relationship focused on integrated care.
